23202240000900		Jason & Tracy Thornock	Individual	Jason and Tracy Thornock own a third-generation cattle and hay ranch in Cokeville, Lincoln County, Wyoming (1). Jason Thornock has publicly advocated for ranch-scale solar to offset an approximately $150,000 annual electric bill, testifying to the state legislature about the benefits of net metering and criticizing the utility as a 'government-protected monopoly' (2). In 2016, the Wyoming Supreme Court affirmed a district court ruling denying the Thornocks' request for a private road across neighboring land, finding they already had adequate access via a public road (3).	support	Medium	local_control, tax_revenue_benefit. Engage Jason on energy independence. Acknowledge his legislative testimony regarding net metering and emphasize how this project aligns with his goal of reducing utility monopoly control and lowering agricultural operating costs.	H
