23202240000900		Jason & Tracy Thornock	Individual	Jason and Tracy Thornock own a ranch in Lincoln County, Wyoming, and in 2015 they filed an unsuccessful lawsuit claiming their property was landlocked and seeking a private access road (¹). Jason Thornock also sued PacifiCorp in a contract dispute over power line easements for an irrigation pivot on his ranch; the Wyoming Supreme Court ruled against him in 2016 (²).	unknown	Low	privacy_quiet, fair_contracting. Engage the Thornocks with a straightforward, businesslike approach that respects their property rights. Emphasize clear written agreements and assure them the development will not interfere with their ranch access or operations.	M

23202510002100		Justin & Jamie McKinnon	Individual	Justin and Jamie McKinnon are landowners based near Cokeville in Lincoln County, and their family ranch has received around $227,000 in federal farm subsidies from 1995 to 2024 (3). This indicates a substantial cattle or hay operation, but neither Justin nor Jamie has a public profile in local government or development issues (no mentions in news or civic records).	unknown	Low	farmland_preservation. Meet on their farm to discuss how the project can coexist with or even benefit their agricultural operation. Highlight protections for their grazing land and any improvements (like road upkeep) that will help their ranch.	M

Such lands were granted to Utah at statehood and are managed by the Utah Trust Lands Administration to generate revenue for public schools and other institutions (4). No individual resident is associated with these properties (they are not privately owned).	unknown	Unknown	Coordination would occur through official channels (Utah's trust land administration) rather than personal outreach.	M
23202410002000		Monte McKinnon (Trustee)	Trust	Monte McKinnon is listed as the trustee of a family ranch property in Lincoln County, suggesting the McKinnon land is held in a trust. He is part of the longstanding McKinnon ranching family based around Cokeville, Wyoming (5), although he himself has kept a low public profile with no noted involvement in local civic affairs.	unknown	Medium	heritage_family_legacy, farmland_preservation. Approach through a personal, respectful conversation that acknowledges the family's long legacy in the area. Involve his family (e.g. adult children managing the ranch) and focus on how the project can be shaped to honor and protect their generational land investment.	M

23203410000200, 22200130001900	✓	G & D Properties LLC	llc	G & D Properties LLC is registered in Wyoming as a limited liability company owning multiple parcels in Lincoln County, but public records do not disclose its managers or members ⁶ . The company has no known local business presence beyond holding land, and no UCC financing statements or other filings were found to indicate active operations or indebtedness in Wyoming ⁷ . Beneficial ownership remains unknown due to Wyoming's privacy laws for LLCs, suggesting this entity may be an investment vehicle rather than a local family business ⁸ .	Low	land_investment	Unknown principals – engage through registered agent to identify decision-makers; emphasize financial incentives or buyout options given likely investment motive; expect limited community pushback unless property values are impacted	M
22200340002000, 22200130002000		Willis Land Wyoming LLC	llc	Willis Land Wyoming LLC is an entity holding land in Lincoln County, Wyoming, with little publicly available information on its ownership or operations (⁹) (¹⁰). The LLC's name suggests a private investment (possibly by an individual or family named Willis), but Wyoming's anonymous LLC filing practices mean the true beneficial owner is not disclosed ¹¹ . No business licenses, local addresses, or media references were found for this company, indicating it functions purely as a landholding vehicle (¹²) (¹³). There are no recorded political donations or court cases linked to Willis Land Wyoming LLC in Wyoming, further implying its involvement in the community is limited to passive land ownership (¹⁴).	Low	speculation	Identify and reach out to the owner or representative (possibly via the registered agent); emphasize financial outcomes (e.g., buy-out or land value impacts) to gain cooperation; anticipate neutral stance unless investment is threatened	M

22200220002100, 44-28-000-0001		Putnam Ranch, LLP	llp	Putnam Ranch, LLP is a Wyoming limited liability partnership that appears to represent a family ranch operation in Lincoln County (Star Valley area), as indicated by its name and long-term land ownership (¹⁵) (¹⁶). The partnership holds at least two sizable parcels, consistent with an established cattle ranch or agricultural enterprise in the community (likely multi-generational, though specific family members are not publicly listed) (¹⁷) (¹⁸). No separate commercial business filings or corporate officers are listed beyond the partnership itself, suggesting the Putnam Ranch is managed privately by the family and primarily focused on ranching activities rather than diversified business ventures (¹⁹). The partnership has no recorded involvement in public disputes or developments, implying its stance would center on protecting its agricultural land use and property rights (²⁰).	Medium	agriculture	Engage the Putnam family partners directly with respect for their ranching heritage; address any development impact on grazing or land use; consider offering agreements that protect or benefit their agricultural interests to gain support	M
23202510000100		Pope Cattle Refuge LLC	llc	Pope Cattle Refuge, L.L.C. is a Wyoming LLC formed on December 31, 2012, with its legal address in Cokeville, Lincoln County ²¹ . The company is part of the Pope family's ranching enterprises – records show that Evan Pope is listed as the organizer and registered agent, and he also manages related entities like Pope Rawhide, LLC and Pope Shield, LLC, indicating a significant family-run cattle operation (²²) (²³). The Pope family's entities collectively hold substantial ranch acreage in the area, and their LLC names suggest a focus on cattle raising and land conservation (“Refuge” and “Rawhide”) under family ownership (²⁴) (²⁵). There is no indication of non-ranch business activities; the family's public profile is tied to local agriculture, implying that Pope Cattle Refuge LLC's priorities lie in maintaining their cattle ranching interests and rural land use (²⁶).	Medium	agriculture	Contact managing member Evan Pope as the family's point person; build trust by acknowledging their stewardship of the land; offer project adjustments or benefits (e.g., fencing, land improvements) that address cattle operation concerns to mitigate opposition	M
